EnergyWire -- Wed., June 6, 2012 -- Read the full edition

1. STATES: Wyo. official pins Pavillion pollution complaints on greed

VANCOUVER, British Columbia -- Wyoming's top oil and gas official yesterday said the people in Pavillion, Wyo., who have complained that drilling polluted their water are motivated by money. "I really believe greed is driving a lot of this," state Oil and Gas Supervisor Tom Doll told a meeting of fellow state regulators here. "I think they're just looking to be compensated."
